The cell cycle distribution and DNA synthesis of human peripheral blood lymphocytes (PBL) obtained from 18 patients with a variety of solid neoplasms and 6 patients with lymphoma were studied by flow cytometry. The distribution of cells in the S phase of the cell cycle and their proliferative capacity were also analyzed. Lymphocytes of patients with lymphoma revealed a statistically significant higher proportion of cells in the S phase and a lower proliferative capacity when compared with those of normal and disease-free patients (P less than 0.01, P less than 0.001, respectively). The values of PBL from patients with various neoplasms did not differ significantly from the values of lymphocytes from normal controls./* SNMP interface for Deos device management agent Copyright (C) 2004-2007 Richard Purdie All rights reserved.
