And while the date was changed from September to April in the last decade to align more closely with the Greater Dallas-Fort Worth Chapter's show, the show that started it all in April and is the longest-running event in the state is back, for 2014, March 20-22 at the George R. Brown Convention Center. First-time exhibitors will again have an opportunity to check out the unique, family-friendly exhibits of art, games and craft items; from pets to tractors, visitors can find everything they're looking for. The show also will feature special events and concerts, the largest youth area of the year, the largest grown fruit exhibit and the largest number of exhibit staff of any show. Of course, visitors will find an exciting lineup of agricultural equipment and machinery, with two new exhibit categories: Educational and Agricultural Health and Safety. More than 5,000 products were entered into two varieties of judging: the single variety, to be judged on the excellence of the product, such as grain or a cash crop, and the multiple variety, to be judged on multiple characteristics that may include yield, size, shape, sheen and taste, as well as color and size of grain, etc. A total of 2,988 products were entered into the 2014 Northeast Texas Farm Show. This total includes 1,243 entries in single variety and 1,635 entries in multiple varieties. The following was awarded gold, silver and bronze trophies to the Northeast Texas Farm Show: We are happy to announce that the new full-scale version 0.6.6 (Linux/MacOS) and 0.7.0 (Windows) of our QKD implementation are available for download at: QKDsystems website Our public git repository is at The download page includes information about installation of the software and about the edd6d56e20
