HyperGraph is a graphical, object-oriented programming environment for creating workflows. The main focus of the programming environment is to allow users to set up workflows that can be used to automate tasks in AutoCAD. HyperGraph is also used for other tasks such as development of Visual LISP extensions and AutoLISP extensions. Visual LISP The Visual LISP is an interpreter for creating, compiling, debugging, and running programs written in a Visual LISP-based language. This supports, among other things, extending AutoCAD with custom commands and scripts. An example of customizing AutoCAD with Visual LISP is a command that removes all the walls from an open model. Visual LISP also supports the use of AutoCAD extensions and is used by plugins to access AutoCAD. VBA Visual Basic for Applications (VBA) is an

ActiveX control that allows VBA scripts to be created for AutoCAD. A custom VBA command can be created to, for example, determine the maximum and minimum value of a field in a drawing. On May 31, 2007, Autodesk was the first company to release a version of the AutoCAD engine for Microsoft Windows. The release of AutoCAD version 2006 was made available for Microsoft Windows Vista. The release of AutoCAD 2009 was made available for Microsoft Windows Vista SP1 and Microsoft Windows 7 SP1. AutoCAD 2006 introduced an embedded Web browser and the ability to import and export DXF files. AutoCAD's object-oriented scripting language is based on VBA and allows the creation of a wide variety of applications, but this must be done within a Windows-based system.

Macro Manager Macro Manager is a feature of AutoCAD which allows users to create their own custom programs. It is based on the Visual LISP language. Users can select blocks from a model or from other documents and create custom programming which can be saved and reused.

ObjectARX ObjectARX is a C++ class library used as the base for a number of extensions created by third-party developers. There are a large number of AutoCAD plugins (add-on applications) available on the application store Autodesk Exchange Apps. ObjectARX-based extensions include tools such as Autodesk Car Design, Autodesk Piping and Design
