Set in Tehran in the 1960s, the year before the Islamic Revolution, this detective story tells the story of Detective Mohammad Afshar who is tasked with uncovering the crimes of murder and treason. The hero, detective Mohammad Afshar, is faced with the difficult task of getting to the bottom of the multiple crimes that have been committed against the country. The investigation takes him to a number of locations in the capital and the surrounding countryside, including Rasht, Abadan, the Beechtree fort, and many others. The main subject of the story revolves around dozens of murders, major and minor. Among them, we find the rape of a teacher of Rasht and the burning of a Beechtree fort. As the detective unravels the details of the story, he encounters such characters as the British, a number of British officials, a series of turncoats, spies, traitors, and people who will do anything for money. The style and graphics in the game have been kept true to 2D film noir. The background graphics of newspapers, letters, and advertisements from the time have been prepared using film noir backdrops. The environment and lighting have been drawn up just like those from the time. The progress of the game is presented as a series of short film noir music. Please visit for more information. The smuggling began in the early 1970s when Iran's leader then Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called upon the impoverished nation to use and sell their oil as a source of revenue. In 1979, the Islamic Revolution in Iran took place when the government nationalized the country's oil companies and resources, under the slogan "Energy is for the People". The nationalization was carried out by taking the factories, refineries, oil wells and the products that they were producing. After The Iranian revolution the smugglers were given the responsibility of solving the crisis of imported oil and the shortage of domestic oil by selling oil through clandestine means to close ally Syria and through

Comrade-in-Arms Features Key:

Strategic Eco-Atrocity gameplay
Vast single player campaign
Robust customisation
High production value

The game world has once again thrown the Western world into an age of global ecological apocalypse, continuing the popular 'Future Terror' series of games.

Up a skyscraper in downtown New York City has been placed a 'push to red button' called the drone swarm project. Once activated; the swarm will consume every living creature it comes in contact with. A task force of the FBI, NYPD, and the US Military have discovered a plot to deploy the world's first airborne drone swarm to exterminate 95 per cent of all human life in the world in less than an hour!

The player takes the role of legendary Pylon operative HyperDev.5' as he attempts to thwart this apocalyptic scenario once and for all. Armed with his devastatingly agile evo suit and a beam rifle, HyperDev must battle his way from the 9th floor to the top of the tower, and stop the drone installation; all whilst being pursued across the city by swat teams.

This game is the third in the series and follows in the footsteps of 'Drone Apocalypse' and 'Drone Swarm'. Players will need to make decisions, be it target, pursuit, or evade - at the right time, the right place, or the right suit evo!

Like the first two games in the series HyperDev is the latest evolution of a brilliant suit. More than your traditional, arcade style action game though, this is a nuanced, story driven space action game. Characters take the shape of vibrant colours. Creatures in the game world can be seen as morphic forms. Characters have distinct characteristics unique to them - a kind of 'chameleon' that changes appearance and ability depending on environmental conditions.

Did your favorite squad member make it to the top of the tower? Find out in this thrilling 100+ strategy action puzzle game.

==Game "Basement" Overview== Basement Gameplay: - Criminal Gameplay (Strategy) & Business Gameplay - Business Gameplay and Legal Responsibilities - Tenant Management and Legal Responsibilities - Home Environment and Legal Responsibilities - Enemies, Working Hours and Legal Responsibilities - Build and Own Your Empire! ==Game "Basement" Gameplay== ==Game "Basement" Gameplay== In "Basement" you'll start on "black market". Buy stuff there, from other players, and sell it to "white market". You'll have to do everything, yourself, from sorting packages, transport, up to sales. And you'd better make it fast! As soon as you get your hands on a product from someone else, you get it on your premises, you have to sell it, and you get a cut. Do you have the right to sell it, at the right price? Well, to be frank, you have no choice. If you want to play the game, you either have to make your dreams come true, or you'll end up in the game's ground prison. As you can see, running a business in "Basement" is complex and you'll have to work fast. Never delay because your boss always has time to yell at you. You won't have the whole day, but you have to work fast because your boss may just kick you out, due to your slow response. Basement Gameplay: In "Basement" game there is no level system. You cannot go back to the "level" you were on. Your level never goes back, it goes up, and if you don't play fast enough, you'll get kicked out. So choose your subjects carefully and train them properly. Afterall, they are your "workers" that do stuff. ==Basement Gameplay== Key Features of "Basement" Game: - Crime Gameplay - Strategy Gameplay - Business Gameplay - Home Environment - Tenant Management & Legal Responsibilities - Enemies & Working Hours - Building and Owning Your Empire! ==Basement Gameplay== In "Basement" you'll start in a basement. There are 2 other people living there with you; you just have to deal with them. Try to be nice to them, they may become your friends later, on the game. If you don't want to play this game because of the era This is an interesting topic which I don't think most people here at English Fencing would have thought of before. There are a few original rolls and coins of people in the 16th and 17th centuries which are marked with seals in the form of coumans. The minimum requirement is a union or coat of arms bearing some accolade or device with the arms and the court seals, the motto of the House or the house shield being also required. There is an organisation called the Court Fellows which is educating young people in this area. The website shows a number of seals not only of Fencing Courts and Courts Martial, but also devices of trade and science. It includes some other working seals with some pleasant logo designs. Some others are of the military seals of Scotland, Wales and Ireland. Lewis Llewelyn, ap Iago of Llifon et Corbi (Llanfihangel Rhosgyniog, Mid Glamorgan), had the following arms: per fess gules and argent in chief a kennel counterchanged and in base three leopards trippant escalloped ermine and for a crest a doe couped at the point of the shoulder with a coronet ermine from an orle counterchanged (Liwyn (Lliwain) ap Iago was the son of Sir Iago ap Gwrgenedig ap Ivella ap Madog ap Iago and Elinor, daughter of Sir Madog ap Iago or Mamorth y Glynolwg). Skipping the details, he was arrested in London on 7 January 1653 for high treason and felony, hanged and quartered, and then decapitated for allegedly conspiring against Monmouth. This was the origin of the arms of Thomas Pennant, 1st Baron Oakworth; Had a life of one of them been known outside his region, it would be said that he was the last of the ancient historians. In the history of the Pennant family, it is well known that three generations do not pass in Cornwall without the death of a natural brother, uncle or cousin, which has led the family to believe that the last Pennant to live was "ancestor and great grand-uncle-all but dead", Thomas. All the Pennants, even twins, to judge from the "Bala Crows" of

What's new in Comrade-in-Arms:

The adventure begins in a mysterious cave deep under a mountain. It's not long before you discover a labyrinth with new rooms and enemies. But be careful! It's not only the vicious enemy ahead of you... Stolen Runes is a new RPG / platformer with a light puzzle twist that will draw you in and keep you coming back for more. Key features: - many difficult puzzles - The blood curse: find runes, solve puzzles - several monster types - RPG elements: level up your heroes and get loot - combat system: your hero can turn into a giant monster when getting hit - collectibles: collect the runes and treasure chests - collect all the runes and solve puzzles to find the secret passageway to the dimension portal - different difficulty modes and a difficulty indicator for the best of both worlds - story mode: 50 hours of game play - there are many different story endings - high-quality soundtrack - 3D models - experience an ending, if you find all the runes - it's a great adventure for all ages. I had the 2nd greatest RPG experience with Stolen Runes, i've never had as much fun with an RPG since WoW! The game play is quite fun and the story is quite interesting, the combat system is fairly easy and the boss battles are quite fun to beat since there are waypoints where you can get reinforcements to help. The people who code games for computers just don't get it, they'll change their games to fit the viewers, but not to just make a game that enjoyable. Shame on game developers that thinks they can make a highly efficient game that is fun to play. If they thought they could have just included a system that would allow for turn based combat they wouldn't have to make that RPG, there's no fun in turn based. Stop trying to make things efficient and change it to where it suits a specific type of people. But I can't make it, please read all reviews before you buy this game. This game is one of the best out there! I've played so many games of this genre, and honestly the one I keep coming back to is Stolen Runes. Some people have said the graphics aren't the best, but I disagree. The graphics get the job done and I've played a lot of games that had better graphics. As for controls, they are smooth and easy to use, they're just what you'd expect from a good platform game
