8/10 Visuals: 3/10 Controls: 6/10 Gameplay: 5/10 Overall Experience: 7/10 One of the most aggressive stories, with the most gruesome sequences in the history of the genre. With the time to kill after completing the credits of the first Shadow of the Damned, director Ted Raimi, Franco Nero and writer of the popular video game series Resident Evil decided to team up to make a reboot of his first great horror game. For years, in the shadow of the legendary Resident Evil 4, it was seen as a game to cash in on the fame of the series and by the fans. The result of this collaboration is none other than Shadow of the Damned, the first horror game that will make you fear the night itself, and the first Capcom Game in years that doesn't focus on action. A game that's more about horror than story and an experience of a game that mixes survival horror with action, instead of Resident Evil 4. The game takes place in New Orleans, where you have to find the cure to a deadly virus. But after all, is it really a virus, or is it something that a whole town is fighting against, a ghost that came from Hell to collect souls, and a black meteor, which fell on the town three years before and caused the apocalypse? The game is divided into two chapters, the first of which takes place in the old part of town, the second chapter is a side quest that takes place in a school where you will find supplies and an answer to the game's biggest mystery. Each chapter is set in a different city, but all of them have a lot of logic behind the structure they have chosen. You play as Daniel, who is investigating a place known as Inglewood, where his wife was murdered. However, in a classic Hollywood style, the place is full of secrets and secrets are the foundation of the story. The first chapter is influenced by the American Western, while the second chapter does not differ much from the classical survival horror formula. The first chapter is full of surprises, while the second one is a bit more simple. Where Resident Evil 4 takes place in a very predictable structure with its five acts, Shadow of the Damned mixes in action, puzzles, a good soundtrack, (if you can find new tunes, while listening to the voices you find in the game), and some crazy twists and turns that make you shudder

Escape Planet 17 Features Key:

A combat simulation game as you take on board the ship of your dreams. Master your skills in gunnery and pilotage. Destroy other ships, steal enemy cargo and reach your escape planet. Cool and beautiful environments. Deep blue oceans, copper skies and a rhomboid atmosphere. A full 3D game world with hair-raising flying.

NOTE: The Escape Planet game is PlayStation3 and Xbox 360 compatible only.

Gameplay

Escape Planet takes the firepower of another generation to the third. We have worked hard to combine the strengths of our two previous shooters and have created the ultimate flight combat. You are the ultimate gunship pilot of your own dream ship. Get the enemy port up on screen, scan the scenery with your nav system and react to the enemy maneuvers. Everything - including damage repair - takes place inside the ship.

You must develop your ship and weapons mastery in the course of your quest on the big screen. Your ship can only be damaged by weapons and the power of your missiles may be reduced. Every time you take out an enemy you receive damage to yourself, but not enough to end your life.

Unlike other shooters, you only die if you pass beyond the boundaries of the game. Defying the sacred laws of reality and your health bars, you are able to escape at the end of the very last round. If you die the game is over and you can start again whenever you like.

But you will die at the end. If you try to flee, even while still armed with a weapon, the game will end. No getting killed for nothing.

The game requires good reflexes, you are free to walk around the ships, but the external viewport is always necessary if you want to have a look outside.

External viewport to limit the danger for flying near the towers and ground AIs.

You have automatic piloting, with elevation and rolls according to your target's surface. We have also included weapons locks which stop your ship rotating for better damage

How to Play Starlight Tactics 1. Starlight Tactics is a turn-based space combat game. Each player controls one or more starfighters in a battle against the enemy. 2. Each ship in the player's fleet has a set of equipment that the player can select in order to adapt the ship to the battle scenario. 3. There are many different kinds of units and weapons with different effects available. These can be freely selected by the player and will be replaced in each mission. 4. There is an integrated market which allows the player to swap and upgrade their ships and weapons in order to adapt to a specific situation. 5. At the end of each battle, the players who win, lose, or lose but learn more will win the game. Please note: Starlight Tactics is a free-to-play game with micro-transactions. An in-app purchase is not required to play and access to all content. Starlight Tactics is a USF side project and there is no relation to other USF projects. There are no official characters from Starlight Cosmo (check their page) included in the game. What's new in Escape Planet 17:

Escape Planet 17 was an annual science fiction convention held by the Baltimore Science Fiction Society (the "Baltimore SFSF") in Baltimore, Maryland. It was the longest-running SFSF convention, until its 2015 merger with the New York-based Longcon to form MilCon. The first Escape Planet was held on April 6-9, 1974, at the Sheraton Inner Harbor Hotel in Baltimore. Speakers included Isaac Asimov, Richard A. Lovett, and Richard Matheson. Escape Planet 17.0 was planned for August 5-8, 2018. Most of the Baltimore SFSF's annual activities — including Escape Planet — are now coordinated through the new MilCon, including the ASFSF annual science fiction convention which merged with Escape Planet, and other annual conventions such as Light Up The Night, a gaming convention which used to be held at the Peabody Opera House. Escape Team Escape Planet hosted an annual "Escape Team Contest", where theme weeks centered around a movie with an all-star panel of judges and viewers. Fans write submissions, and the best are featured on a special Escape Planet web site and in a written guide to the best theme weeks of the year. The winners, by best time to first finding the judges' winning entry, are the Escape Team, who also get an award called the "Errant Authority". The recipient is always someone who writes the most errant authority entry in an escape team contest. Escape Team Revival 98, the first of their recent activities, was held in the Baltimore Convention Center on Saturday, February 24 through Sunday, February 25, 2013. The theme was Aliens: The Movie. The recipients were Shane McNamer (Featured Writer - 2013) and Michael Pryor (Honorary Errant Authority - 2013). The awards were presented by Steve Jackson at an awards banquet on Friday, February 24, 2013. The theme of the 2014 convention was Not Another Teen Movie. The recipients were David J. Phillip (Featured Writer - 2014) and Caleb Weems (Honorary Errant Authority - 2014). The awards for 2015 were Unidentified Flying Objects. The award was won by Sarah Place (Featured Writer - 2015). The theme for 2016 was Phantoms. The awards were won by Liz Riggs (Featured Writer - 2016) and Michael James (Honorary Errant Authority - 2016). The 2017 theme was Them! The award was won by Gunmen (Featured Writer - 2017) and Scott Farqu

Texas horse thief survives shooting Killed in shooting late Thursday. A man who walked into a farm and killed a Mexican man in the middle of the night appears to have turned the gun on himself after at least two people heard shots, local officials said. The farm was about a mile south of the town of San Antonio and it's unclear how many people were present at the time of the shooting. Shrine After Miguel Martinez died, his neighbors called a nurse, who performed emergency medical treatment on him as police investigated the farm. Then they waited. From the next farm over, a man heard 20 shots, his daughter heard a truck leave, and someone from another house thought he heard a single shot fired in front of the farmhouse. Authorities said the man walking around the farm saw Martinez on the ground and brought him to his own farmhouse, where he was found dead. HuffPost talked to the daughter of Miguel Martinez and she told her father would have tied a rope around his wrist when he walked to his own home on the farm; she said it was missing after his body was found. She said police told her her dad was shot more than once by the man
