These technological upgrades implement a fully re-contextualized match engine that delivers a more accurate and balanced representation of the most popular game in the world. The higher level of realism is visible on every facet of the game, from player animation to dribbling controls to ball physics and changes to the appearance of stadiums. "FIFA 22 is the most ambitious FIFA title yet, and the first to incorporate and fully leverage the impressive 'HyperMotion' engine," said Allan Samar, Executive Vice President and Managing Director, EA SPORTS. "This engine will be the foundation of the in-game physics and visuals engine for FIFA titles going forward, including FIFA 25 and beyond." Impressively detailed running, jumping and tackling animations are key elements in FIFA's world-class gameplay experience. FIFA 22 makes tackling more intuitive by letting players naturally defend while sliding the ball away from a tackle. Global ball physics and artificial intelligence have also been revamped. FIFA players can now be hit more realistically by a teammate's tackle or the ball with a sliding tackle. In addition, ball speed and touch controls are more natural than ever. FIFA 22 comes out on September 28 for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, PC (download), and Nintendo Switch. As is tradition, EA Sports is making FIFA 22 available to fans on the App Store on the day of release for iPhone and iPad, and on Google Play for Android and Amazon for Kindle Fire devices. Users can also download the Madden NFL 19 app and engage with EA SPORTS FIFA 19 Ultimate Team, the official gaming companion to FIFA 19. Users can find more information on FIFA 22, Ultimate Team, and on digital releases, in the links below. FIFA 22 Pre-Order FAQs Q. What is "FIFA Points?"
