From small tweaks in the passing and shooting mechanics of some players to the DNA of the football engine, FIFA 22 is driven by the knowledge-base of 22 footballers: 11 of the starting line-up have been following EA SPORTS football simulations since the beginning; of these 11, 10 have trained with EA SPORTS Football Club, the official football club for every FIFA game. The 21 st-century Master of Football is redesigned from the inside out. “We are very happy to have added the Master of Football concept to FIFA 22,” said Andrew Vrzalik, Executive Producer, FIFA. “The new customisable Master of Football feature shows the detail and intelligence we’ve built into the new FIFA engine. We’re excited to share it with you and make the Master of Football come to life in a way that's never been done before." The Master of Football will train players on real-life stadiums using stadiums and pitches that are procedurally generated from user-input data including location, wind direction, weather conditions, elevation and surface type. The Master of Football will also work with players to improve their strengths and weaknesses, providing individualised training plans for every player. The Master of Football will begin the new chapter of the historic FIFA franchise on August 3, 2017, with FIFA

18, available for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, Windows PC and Wii U. Players will be able to experience the Master of Football as a free update for FIFA 18. A roadmap for future additions and improvements will be released in the near future. There are four distinct 'stances' which the Master of Football model can be in, each of which affects a player's movement. A scout stance is for slow and simple dribbles, a standing ready stance is for shuffles and quick evasion; a sprint ready stance is for aggressive driving runs and a tackle ready stance is for defensive closing-down movements. Players can use a specific stance to gain an edge in the game, so Master of Football is now tailored specifically to players of different styles and abilities in real life. “We’ve designed the FIFA 22 engine specifically to make the Master of Football a reality,” said Aaron Mahnke, FIFA Lead Designer. “The Master of Football will communicate with a player’s abilities and weaknesses, so it will be a player’s companion and will become invaluable for users who will want to take advantage
