EDIT - Now that I have found another similar question (Compiling a python module to a shared object on linux), I have tried gcc -shared -fPIC -o foo.so foo.c but I am still getting undefined reference to `PyInt_Type' undefined reference to `PyLong_Type' undefined reference to `PyUnicode_Type' undefined reference to `PyTuple_Type' undefined reference to `PyList_Type' undefined reference to `PyFloat_Type' What am I missing? I also tried removing -fPIC. But that didn't help either. A: Adding -lpython2.7 solved the problem for me. So - gcc -shared -o foo.so foo.c -lpython2.7 static CellContext getDynamicCachedCell(Context context, Class clazz) { if (context == null) { return null
