A: Okay, try not to get overly upset. It's not your fault, but it doesn't help much to pretend you're not bugged out if you are. As @thebrik points out in the comments: "Software piracy isn't illegal, so it's up to the owner of whatever is pirated to decide whether it's allowed and what, if anything, should happen. As far as I'm aware, using a free version of software for private, non-commercial purposes is not illegal. You're legally using a commercial product, which is why you need a license key."

Basically, you may be a victim of an online scam (no, not the ones where you have to pay $20 to use your free license for a year). The software company you are dealing with has been compromised.

They have copied your key somehow, and are using that to infect the computers that are visiting their website. That said, if you were to pay for your software, you wouldn't have had that key in the first place.

Q: php display only unique id not all data I have an array with data below: [{ "id": "1", "amount": "100", "trip_id": "1", "estimated": "1" }, { "id": "1", "amount": "110", "trip_id": "2", "estimated": "0" }, { "id": "2", "amount": "120", "trip_id": "2", "estimated": "0" }, { "id": "3", "amount": "130", "trip_id": "1", "estimated": "0" }] The output display like this 0cc13bf012
