Quadrilateral Cowboy is a 1990's era first person heist game. A story about the brotherhood between robbers and the value of friendship and hope in the face of adversity. You play as eight different characters as they travel to participate in highly dangerous heists. You make heists and choose which of your character's motivations to follow. You make the decisions that play a part in the future of your characters. Features:

- Six different heists from six unique characters with completely different backstories.
- Create your own level design for your heist.
- Choose your own path through the game, your character's narrative and your heist.
- Choice and consequence based choices with repercussions and consequences.
- A combination of character interactions and individualized player progression.
- Colorful characters with vibrant animations.
- Multiple endings.
- Five playable characters: Danny Glover, Mel Gibson, Danny Trejo, Marky Mark and Jake Gyllenhaal.
- Story Mode featuring the heists of all the characters.
- Bug Hunt Mode, where the player can play through as a selected character with rewards and story progression each time they beat the game.
- "Flipside" and "Blackout" modes, where you can take control of the game from a different character's perspective.
- Special lens, rewind and timeskip options.
- Asynchronous multiplayer with rankings and other players.
- Undo function.
- Difficulty level settings for three different game styles.
- Bonus levels.

I'll give you whatever you want and you just gotta stop with the shit, ok?" "I don't need for anybody to back me up," I sighed. "I just need you to back off." "And why?" "Because... I just need to get rid of the goddamn stack of dead bodies in the apartment. I don't need anyone fighting on my side for that. And I don't need for you to get involved with this." "And why's that?" "Because..."

Build the bullets and magic bullets to slay your way to victory in REX. REX is built on a bullet hell engine designed to throw you at the screen as fast as you can pull the trigger. Navigate lava, giant bosses, and frenetic bullet hell level designs, whilst also upgrading your magical bullets, weapons and armor. As you progress you'll discover secrets which can grant you additional bonuses and leave upgrades on hand should you be victorious in your next match. REX is currently in development but is looking for players to test early builds and offer feedback. Habituation and recovery of conditioned place preference is impaired by long-term reserpine treatment. Habituation and recovery of conditioned place preference induced by repeated conditioning are important phenomena for the development of psychopharmacological and psychotherapeutic techniques. Under certain circumstances drugs may cause an impairment of these phenomena, particularly with long-term treatment. Here we report that the repeated administration of reserpine (2 mg/kg s.c.), a blocker of dopamine (DA) reuptake, for 14 days results in an impairment of habituation and recovery of conditioned place preference in rats. Within 10 min after the drug injections rats showed severe deficits in activity levels in the conditioned place preference apparatus, as shown by their high freezing levels and the large number of rearing counts. After 1 day of withdrawal activity recovered, and on day 7 the rats were able to habituate to the conditioned place preference apparatus as indicated by a marked decrease in freezing levels and a small increase in rearing. While these animals had recovered from the immediate impact of the drug on habituation, this recovery was not accompanied by recovery in conditioned place preference. The treatment had a pronounced cumulative effect on recovery, with a slower recovery of conditioned place preference on day 7 compared to day 1. The treatment also resulted in a pronounced loss of conditioned place preference induced by priming conditioning, as shown on day 10. Furthermore, repeated reserpine treatment had a powerful suppressive effect on the expression of conditioned place preference induced by a repeated conditioning procedure. These results show that the repeated administration of reserpine for 14 days has marked effects on the habituation of the rats to the place conditioning apparatus, on the ability to recover from the long-term effects of the drug, and on the expression of conditioned place preference. The results show that exposure of rats to the long-term effects of reserpine may affect the conditioning process and may result in learning impairments. Moonlight in Garland offers a fun, distinctive life simulator that is more character focused and less grind focused than other life sims. I chose a cutesy look for the game to match its feel, but I hope players will also enjoy the game when it is released for a more solemn look as well. I've been working on this project for around a year and a half now, and I hope to deliver this game on time this December as planned, but things have gotten increasingly more time consuming and the development process, as a whole, has started to slow. By the time it is released, I hope that all of the time I've put into this project has improved its quality and accessibility while not watered down its core features. Hello everyone! My name is Violet, I'm a UK based game dev/programmer, and I'm currently working on a life simulator called Moonlight in Garland. I'm making this game and I've been doing so for about 18 months, so far I've finished a few levels, but I think that my game is a bit too early for the genre in which it is a part of. So, after a few months, I decided to make a trailer (below) for a liveplay/demo of my game, and possibly have the game released at the end of the year. This thread will provide players the opportunity to try out the game, but there will be a lot of bugs that need fixing after the game has been released. I'm going to provide as much help as I can for players who do have experience with programming, but also anyone can help! I hope that you guys enjoy the game, play it, and spread the word around :) The last debug build was made for the 2019 spring Expo, here is the updated build for the summer schedule. ===== Changelog: - Fixed crash bug with `remove_achievement`. - Fixed missing volume. - Updated some of the spawn rules. - Changed the `page_counter` cheat that was changed when it was released.
