Story: Play as a zombie slayer trying to find guns and survive a town filled with zombies Choose: There are 5 different characters you can play as, all of them with their own story Challenge: There are a lot of different weapons in the game, all with different ways to kill the zombies Upgrade: Upgrade your weapons and increase their stats (This game is very difficult, please don't mistake friendliness for incompetence) Check out the previous game: Daily Cup # 4 RECAP ----- It was a close one this time, but I was finally able to overtake the top four players in the game and win my first cup. It was a very good experience. I've got lots of lessons learned. Game 1 I won with an Anti-Air deck that was also very good. The deck was basically a copy of what nh0af3r95 launched with. Game 2 I bought 2 misrunes after discarding 2 cards to the misprint. This made it worse. It was as though a new pack was opened. Game 3 I was able to defeat a deck that was more or less a niche build. I didn't want to take the risk against the same build again, but I wanted to beat a slower deck. This is how I did it. Game 4 I was able to beat nh0af3r95's Anti-Air deck. The meta was not favorable and I just lucked out. Game 5 He ran a 4/4 card on the first turn. I was able to respond quickly and kill his hero. I was 100% confident in my victory after that. In conclusion, this was a great experience. I had learned a lot about myself, the game and the meta. I definitely intend to keep playing the game. Thanks for watching and until next time! "Thanks everyone for the new followers. We need more diversity in the game, so here's a list of the top 12 viewers on YouTube Most of them have at least 100,000 subs. Let's see if we can get more Hope you like and share this. Thanks" (can you draw the rest of the guys?) (I can find most of them via the description. They're labeled in the footer). As always, I'm open to suggestions. In this week

Snow Apocalypse Crack + [Win/Mac]

In a post-apocalyptic world, you must survive and be the first to claim the beacon. There is a problem, though. Every time you die, you are killed by an undead zombie, a monster from the snow, or a giant monster called Zark. So, you must keep running from the zombie pack, dodging zombies and snow, trying to avoid being killed by the zombies, snow or Zark monsters. Gameplay: 1: Find a way to light a beacon. 2: This is a survival game. You only have one life! 3: Do not die. 4: Match all the letters of the word "Beacon" on the game board. 5: The first player to claim the beacon will score 3 points. 6: The winner gets 3 points and they will be the first player to win the game! Download Game "Snakes&Ladder Game" Gameplay: Run down the ladder, avoid the snakes and collect the food and keys as you go. This game has 7 levels with unique challenges each time you complete a level you earn a key. Gameplay: 1: Run as fast as you can down the ladder 2: The player with the most keys at the end wins! 3: Collect the food and keys Download Game "Candy Smash Game" Gameplay: This is a fun, arcade style game. Your goal is to collect all the candies as you progress through 15 levels. The player who collects the most candies wins. Gameplay: 1: Use the rock to hit the candy. 2: Avoid obstacles and grab as many candies as you can in each level. Game "Forest of Terror" Gameplay: Combine tactics, reflexes and stamina to survive the longest as you venture through the dark halls of a haunted forest. Gameplay: 1: Use the torch to light the torches. 2: Tap on the monster to move through the level 3: Activate the traps to turn them off. 4: If you die during the maze, you return to the start of the maze. Download Game "Darth Vader" Gameplay: Unleash the dark side by defeating the enemies of the Empire. You face 17 different enemies, each one will test you different way. You can choose to fight them one at a time, or in groups. You need to make your way through the level to reach the end.

What's new in Snow Apocalypse:

? If Congress says it's a major storm, then it is. Renewed calls for busting up the Levee Board By Charles Stuart Updated Oct. 1, 2006 12:01 a.m. ET MILWAUKEE Twenty-seven inches of snow fell here on Sunday--more than the state's entire average per year. This storm may have been dumped on us by the same weather system that produced severe storms earlier in the week and just recovered from Hurricane Katrina. But these storms tend to be fleeting and just happening to come through at once. This one, though, just won't go away. In fact, some parts of Wisconsin are looking at more snow. Central Illinois won't need to be snubbed. Washington's still in the firing line. And everyone else can expect to start getting a jingle out of the band again in the next couple of days. There is probably less excitement in the Northeast than in Wisconsin. January is not known for snowstorms, although this week has been the exception to that. (The worst blizzard of all time, in 1888, hit then.) And we don't get to see the treacherous river ice that skis, boards, and slides down the Mississippi each spring like models from a skiing show. But families in the Midwest probably do get kinder and gentler weather than they do in the Northeast. And the smaller towns tend to be nicer here than they are elsewhere. Sure, it's probably depressing to fall into a hole and not be able to climb out of it. But that kind of thing doesn't happen here much. Our ancestors were farmers, not New England mill owners. Most of our contemporaries have had a life change, not a life death. Dashing between traffic lights that are yellow or red doesn't happen here. Much of the Midwest is still planted in corn, soybeans, and wheat. Most of the rest is lush forests. This weather cycle doesn't let us take a summer vacation. But our summers are short compared to elsewhere. This isn't ideal, but it probably makes us better weather watchers than anyone else in the world. FREEZING RAIN AND SNOW Where the ice on the Upper Mississippi--and the ice covering snowfields along the Missouri--is caught by the tail end of the jet stream, a form of wind with very cold air gusts, the jet stream piles that ice together, creates icing icing
