FIGURE 4-1 FIGURE 4-2 ## Creating a New Project If you are familiar with Adobe's other image editing programs (such as Dreamweaver and Illustrator), you may feel somewhat at a loss when you first see this program. Here are the basics of how to work with Photoshop: * To create a new file, click the New File icon (it looks like a folder with a plus sign in it) on the File tab, as shown in Figure 4-3. Or you can use the Windows File Explorer and navigate to the Photoshop folder. * This file opens for editing in the Photoshop workspace, shown in Figure 4-4. You can use the shortcuts on the status bar to work with other areas of the document. FIGURE 4-3 FIGURE 4-4

Q: How to get a value of a field in a json message? I have a json like below: `var json = '{"name":"Erwin P"}';` I tried below script to get the value of name field: `var $json = $.parseJSON(json); alert($json.name);` But i see an error message: "Uncaught SyntaxError: Unexpected number in JSON at position 1 A: you have to decode the json-data. there you are missing a curly brace, so it looks like your data will never be parsed. `var json = '{"name":"Erwin P"}'; var $json = $.parseJSON(json); alert($json);` EDIT the use of jQuery is really an overkill here if your JSON object is sent by a PHP file. GET requests it would be easier to send it in GET requests like in PHP (you have to set the Content-Type header to `application/x-www-form-urlencoded`, instead of the default `application/json`) sending a GET request in Javascript you can simply fetch your data from a URL like this: `var json = '{"name":"Erwin P"}'; var x = JSON.parse(json); return x.name; // => Erwin P` how to POST requests if you want to send your data to a php script, this will help you. send the data as POST requests to `get.php` `var json = '{"name":"Erwin P"}'; $.ajax({ type: "POST", url: "get.php", data: 'JSON='+encodeURIComponent(json), success: function(result){ alert(result); } });` Sending data as post requests to PHP and finally, your PHP script receives the data as a POST request. how to get the value of a field in a JSON object In your example i think your json is invalid because you expect the

Q: Scoping application across multiple servers We have a configuration where we run two ajax servers and one as a collector. We have the configuration for loading or caching the data in the application at the element level in the application. We don't want to have a central cache for all elements in the application but what is the best way to get the application to distribute the work across multiple servers. If we have n servers and we want a group of servers to start with the data from one server and the next group of servers get the data from a second server and so on. We have considered using a central server but we do not want to have a central cache. A: If you are going to have multiple servers, do you want them to share data, or be completely isolated? If you want them to share the data, then they share the same cache, or load different portions of the cache on different servers. If you want them to be isolated, then they have different caches, or load different portions of the cache on different servers. You might also be interested in the distributed cache called memcached. Q: How to Bind Property to Child UserControl I'm using a UserControl to handle the markup of my MDI forms. I'm loading the user control on the main form. It has a DataGridView and a couple of CheckBox controls. I want to bind the CheckBox controls to a property on the UserControl class. I need to get the value of that property on a rowcommand eventhandler. Here's my UserControl public partial class UserControl1 : UserControl { public UserControl1() { InitializeComponent(); } public List ListToCheck { get; set; } private void cbAll_CheckedChanged(object sender, EventArgs e) { ListToCheck = new List(); if (cbAll.Checked) { foreach (DataGridViewRow dr in dgvTest.Rows)
