Nikitin, South Australia Nikitin is a locality in the Australian state of South Australia located in the Mallee region about west of the state capital of Adelaide and about north-east of the municipal seat of Gawler. Its boundaries were created in December 1999 for the "long established name". Nikitin was in the Hundred of Singleton. Its name is derived from the cadastral unit of the Hundred of Singleton called "Nikitin's" which was named after James Nikitin who was landowner of the Hundred in the late 19th century. Nikitin is located within the state's Mid North region and its nearest town is Millbrook, which is located to the north-west.
